Apollo might have envied.

His dark piercing eyes were like the waters of his own Rock Creek for depth and clearness, and were brilliant mirrors in which the truth and voracity of his god-like soul were reflected. From his brow of vast and ponderous propor tions, the sympathizing breeze swept back long, a deep raven blackness, but when the light fell upon it, it resembled a muddy pool when the unbeams strike it aslant.

His hands were elasped in an attitude of despair. He spoke, and his tones were deep and mournful, as the chant at the funeral of a martyred bull-frog at Rock Creek dam. "O, fairyqueen of Heaven! Pure dove of the moon-shiny sky! Translucent light of my benighted eyes! Cherished and beloved by my heart's core! How canst thou doubt my love? Dost thou doubt that the cabbage loves the general rain? Dost thou doubt that the chicken loves the dough-dish? Then doubt my love for thee. GUITARS AND VIOLINS.—WE passion that consumes my vitals. Be mine adorated and participated by the passion of the contradiction of of the contrad be obeyed." And her voice was melodious as the tinkle of fractured cow bells far away down the Scipio road, and low and sad as the last moan of a dying pollywog. "Talk not of obedience, thou beautiful and cruel one," he yelled in a voice of speechless agony. "O, canst thou sit in thy cold majesty, like a frozen sausage, and see my aching heart going to smash before thine eyes for a mistaken sense of duty."

"See," said he, as his voice died away to a said wail, like the howl of a proken-backed massaid wail like the howl of a proken-backed massaid wail, like the howl of a proken-backed massaid wail, like the howl of a proken-backed massaid wail like the howl of a proken-backed was a proken-backed was a proken-backed was a pro it whiter than a cotton pillow-case. She spoke, and the stars of night stood pond. She spoke, and the stars of night stood still, the wind ceased to moan among the leaves, and the frogs were silent to listen. "Rudolphus, beloved of my soul," she said in a voice sweeter than the syrup of New Orleans, "thou knowest that I love thee. My heart elings to thee as the bean to its pole. Mine ear knows no music save thy voice, and my lips no victuals but thy kisses. Without thee I famish—I die. But the picket fence of duty surrounds die. But the picket fence of duty surrounds me. Music and the Drama.

The Mozart Society.—The gentlemen and ladies who propose to reorganize the old Mozart, have had two very interesting meetings since our last report. At a meeting last Tuesday evening, the first practical step was taken towards reorganization; and we look forward to the part with articipations of great goal. the next with anticipations of great good. At that time, the Committee of Ways and Means som of three weeks in Philadelphia on the 11th will report a plan of organization, which will, no doubt, be adopted, and a permanent conductor will be elected. Either of the two most prominent candidates for that position possesses the ability to fill it with credit to himself and Music, for neglecting to warm the building the ability to fill it with credit to himself and good to the Society.

The Flower Queen.—On Monday evening last, Mr. Whippie's pupils gave their second performance of this cantata to a full though not crowded house. The exceedingly disagreeable weather prevented the crowd that would other wise have been present. In reference to that concert, we may say, in brief, that the pupils aequitted themselves admirably; but, as a lover of music, and an advocate of all that tends to the improvement of the musical taste of this community, we doubt, very much, the propriety of munity, we doubt, very much, the propriety of bringing such young voices before the public—it encourages in them, not so much a desire for it enconrages in them, not so much a desire for improvement, as the wish to appear in public, and we fear, if persisted in, will encourage in pupils a carelessness as to the principles of music, and a desire for display only—that they will skim hastily over the subject, and gather but a smattering—instead of such thorough knowledge as will be a benefit.

lar season will commence is, as yet, only a mat-ter of conjecture, since Mr Baker, the new lessee, has not made his designs public. It is ru-mored, but with how much foundation we cannor say, that the Marsh children (now in New Orleans) have engaged the theater, and will play a short season; also, that the Gabriel and Francois Ravel Troupe will be here during the vacation. Meanwhile, we must content our selves with such shows, concerts, &c., as may chance to be given. Of the late company of our theater, we believe all have gone to a new field of labor, except two or three Mrs. Wil-kins is still in the city; also, Mrs. Reid and Misses Emily and Cecilia Waldegrave. Any manager who wants an excellent danseuse cannot do better than engage Miss Emily; and Miss Cecilia in light easy business, will become Miss Cecilia in light easy business, will become excellent—she is still very young, both in years and on the stage—but she is studious, attentive, and eareful, and has very greatly improved since the description of the stage. A Mr. E Chase is managing the theater in she came here. Mr. Wood Benson takes the position of stage-manager in Lexington; a position we should think him well qualified to fill—his past experience (in England) has been great, and he will prove that Mr. Hough has made a good selection.

THE CHURCH AND THE STAGE-RELIGION is the duty of the church and the moral portion of the community in general, not only not to fight against the stage and attempt its destruc-tion, nor to ignore its existence, but to take cognizance of it as the completest of all amuse-ments, and the one best calculated to elevate given every man a desire for amusement, which he will gratify whether in the church or out of it, it is a duty the church owes to itself and to by the presence of the better portion of the community, and so direct its energies and capabilities into a proper channel, instead of allowing the devil to take charge of this most complete engine for good or evil.

This is, we are aware, but a poor statement that he has taken a high moral position—the highest-and a common sense view of the en stage—and he illustrates that position with great fairness and plainness, glossing over no defects, hiding no faults on either side. Dur-ing the last three or four years that we have had charge of the musical and theatrical department of this paper, we have on all occasions raised sey Girl." duction of immoral or coarse plays-against the sins of the stage-its swearing, and too frequent vulgarity. That we have not been more successful has been to a great extent the fault of the moral portion of the public, who, by with-holding their countenance, which would have cheeked, if not enfirely destroyed the evil, have given over the stage to the charge of others, whose morals were loose. IT One or two elergymen down East have lately come out in behalf of the drama as a valuable institution, that good people should take care of and turn to good account. There are many good things that are so susceptible of abuse, that it is difficult to decide whether it is better to try to reform them, or throw them away; but in this case we have no choice. The Theater will be kept up, for good or evil, and it may be for good; but certainly for evil if good people forsake it, and leave it to be supported by a different class. As it has been for a long time, it has lost much of its good influence, because the religious community have generally proscribed it. In this they have committed as error, in our judgment. A taste for theatrical representations is natural; it shows itself in early childhood, without teaching; it is univereal, and peculiar to no age or country. It is idle to sav that this natural taste is a vice; that it is essentially wrong. These clergymen, however, will not have much influence in re moving prejudice from the minds of religious people. These divines are not esteemed themselves as any better than they ought to be; be ing rather practical in their notions of things. But why should not church-members go to the theater; they read plays, go to concerts; they even go to a circus, which is certainly no better than a theater? It is true, they might find a good deal offensive to good taste and sound morals at present, but that would soon disappear if the audience disapproved. The stage will be no better than its supporters; and it will not be much worse; and if the truthful representation of virtue is valuable, it certainly can be made better on the stage than in any discourse that could be preached. The most of the representations on the stage are unexceptionable. The most fastidious could not find fault. The impression upon any serious mind cannot be wrong. Why could not the bad be eliminated from theatrical performances? Why should not the experiment be made of liaving the effect of the drama all good; or, at least as good as the work of man usually is? Why leave to actors the necessity of pandering to depraved tastes, at least, occasionally, for want of support from the mass of the virtuous community; especially when it is certain that the atrical representations will go on for good or evil? They are a powerful engine; and why should pious people leave it to the D-l, to be used for his special benefit? This, they believe is the case now; whether they are right or wrong in it. If so, it is their own fault. It is their duty to employ every talent for good; here is one they neglect; and which will be used whether they are willing or not; and which may be used for evil. We know there is an inveterate prejudice in the way; but prejudice is not always reasonable; and men are not excusable for indulging it.

The Massachusetts folks have just de eided, by a majority, that a man who cau't read and write shall not vote. The schricking Yan kees must proscribe somebody, and they have fortunates who, in early life, never had the opportunity of going to schoo'. The State has got along tolerably, in her own estimation, withvery long ago the masses of no country could read or write; were they, therefore, unfit to vote for their rulers? and was despotism over them right to rule the ignorant? The negro can vote in Massachusetts, but the poor white man that cau't read must stand back. Let the shricking Yankees alone, they will get back to atistocracy and mouarchy after awhile. If a to the whole affair: man that can't read must not vote, some further attainment will after awhile be required. and it will be concluded that poor devils have no right to vote any way-that the learned, the wealthy, and well-born ought to attend to the great affairs of government. What strikes us as remarkable, is the sheer wantonness of this provision. Certainly the proscriptive majority cannot say that the people of Massachu- than a year ago, and remained here about two setts have not voted right. The ignorant of months, during which time he succeeded in conletters have certainly not thwarted the purpose tracting debts to the amount of near three hunof the majority by their votes. The provision or intend to pay. He owed Mr. Webster a board to proscribe the unfortunate, and to assert an much more. He never owed a washing bill, so impudent superiority on very small capital—the when he came here, and that had another man's Personal. -In the list of announcements of divine service in this city to-day, we meet the name of Rev. Isaac T. Tichenor, of Alabama, who will preach at the Chestnut-street Presbyterian Church, at 11 o'clock this morning. Although quite young, Mr. T. has found an emineuce in the ministry rarely attained, even by the aged. He is a native of Spencer county Ky., and a member of the family of the same name, which is conspicuous in the history of the Baptist Church in Kentucky. He has made many valuable contributions to literature, and, while he is devoted to his great mission, is a genial, social companion. Ten thousand hearts in Kentucky will rejoice to be told of the suecess of the "boy preacher."

WILL CURE

-Major E. Bartlett and Dr. T. N. Wise, the latter the Master of the Grand Lodge of Masous of Kentneky, and both gentlemen distinguished in all the relations of life, were passengers on the mail-boat for their homes in Covington

-Cal. Thomas Porter, of Covington, propri utor of the Covington Rolling Mill, and a gen tleman of wealth and distinction, is in the city at present. Col. Porter is snpplying the Louis ville and Nashville Railroad Company with the almirable iron which the company is using it the construction of its road. - M. Chenault and Curtis Field, jr., have been nominated by the Know-Nothings of Madison county to the lower house of the Kentucky Legislature. -Major Ezekiel Fleming, of Rumsey, is candidate for the Senate from the counties of Muhlenburg and Ohio.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL .- We learn from the Lexington Observer and Reporter of vesterday that three prisoners confined in jail at Lexington for crime, and awaiting their trials at the next term of the Fayette Circuit Court, made their escape on Thursday night last. They eff eted their escape by making a hole in the wall leading into the yard of the residence of the jailor adjoining the prison. Their names are William Little, the same fellow arrested a short time ago by Officer Rust, in this city, Darwin Payne, and John Eastham-the Iwo former committed for shooting with intent to kill, the latter forlarceny,

THE BAPTIST ANNIVERSARIES .- Iu the Convencion of Southern Baptists vesterday Rev. S B. Taylor, Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, read an interesting report.

At the meeting of the Educational Conven tion subsequently, a committee reported in favor of Greenville, S. C., as the locality of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, and after considerable discussion, the report was adopted.

CIRCUIT COURT-CRIMINAL TERM.-But lit tle business was effected in this tribunal yesterday, owing to the absence of important witnesses. It is proper that we should say in this connection that High Sheriff Megowan has doneverything in his power to promote the ends o justice, but the blind goddess seems to linger. Daniel Barr, for stealing a lot of shoes, was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years.

APPRAY .- The New York Herald of Wed nesday says that a desperate affray occurred at the Girard House Tuesday morning, between Morrissey, the pugilist, and a friend of his named Patterson, and the waiters of the establishment Pistol shots were exchanged, and knives were brought into requisition, but neither of the com batants received any dangerous wounds. The affair is to undergo an investigation.

THE NEW YORK CATTLE MARKET .- The seceipts of beef eattle during the past week amount to 2,923 head, showing a decrease of 369 head as compared with the week previous The market yesterday was rather dull, aud decline in prices of about half a cent per pound was submitted to by holders of stock. The current rates were 101/c. @ 121/c.

D'An arraugement has been made by which the upward morning train of passenger cars on the Louisville and Lexington railroad are to ston for breakfast at the Waide House, Lagrange. on and after Monday next. Travelers on this line who relish a good breakfast, served up in the best style, will alway find things exactly to their liking at the Waide House.

D'By a decision of Chancellor Logan, on Friday, Adam, (onee a slave of Mr. Ormsby Grav, and some time since manumitted, but recently re claimed by the creditors of the original owner,) was declared legally free. Adam has been living in Indiana for some time, but was seized by the creditors aforesaid during a recent visit to Louisville.

The Hon. Edward Everett, of Massachu wette, will deliver a Lecture on "Washington," on Tuesday evening next, at the First Presbyterian Church, ou Green street, at 8 o'clock. The receipts from his lectures are devoted to the purchase of Mount Vernon.
